At the World Airport Awards 2018 held by Skytrax¹ of the UK, Haneda Airport² terminals were presented with first place in the World's Best Airport Clean category for the third year in a row, and the domestic terminals at Tokyo International Airport Haneda were awarded first place in the World's Best Domestic Airport category for the sixth year in a row,

In The World's Cleanest Airports Category, Haneda's Airport won awards for three consecutive years, and it was thanks to even greater efforts on the part of all employees working at Haneda that the terminals' cleanliness and comfort made a good impression once again, leading to this year's award.

The domestic terminals at Tokyo International Airport won awards for six consecutive years, and Haneda's domestic terminals impressed the judges in the World's Best Domestic Airport category for their ease of use and comfort, and impressed the judges of the world's best domestic airport division.

Haneda also in The World's Best Airport ranking, an overall airport assessment, to third place.

Boasting both domestic and international terminals, Tokyo International Airport Haneda will play a very important role in the future in furthering Japan's development as a tourism-oriented nation and in strengthening air transport hub functions in Japan by making the most of the nation's domestic air transport network. Placing the highest priority on airport customers, we will continue to provide facilities and services that offer exceptional convenience, comfort, and functionality, so that Haneda continues to be trusted and selected by customers.
